Mid-2026 district estimates for the 2027/28 grant determination

To: Secretary, Local Government Grants Commission. From: Population Statistics, Kilvarra Statistics Office. 3 December 2026.

Kilvarra had an estimated 320,200 usual residents on 30 June 2026 (90 per cent interval 317,000 to 323,400). Port Ardain, Ballinrea, Drumcastle and Tullaghvane qualify for the urban-services supplement. Newbrook is too close to call: its interval includes 25,000, so under paragraph 3.2 of circular 2026/14 it is paid at half rate for 2027/28. Fort Larrick, Carnmoyle, Rossmullan, Glenarra, Loughmeen, Ardvale and Fennabeg do not qualify.

Tullaghvane: 26,260 (interval 25,650 to 26,870); chance of 25,000 or more over 0.99.

Carnmoyle: 23,930 (interval 23,470 to 24,390); chance of 25,000 or more under 0.01.

Newbrook: 24,730 (interval 24,150 to 25,310); chance of 25,000 or more 0.22.

How the figures were made. Each district's estimate is the number of its health register entries that are correct for the district, measured by the field follow-up of the entries listed at the coverage survey's addresses, divided by the share of the people the survey found who are on that district's list. The survey was matched to the register on names, dates of birth and postcodes, and the clerical review shows what the matching misses: the matcher links 92.3 per cent of Kilvarran citizens and 72.3 per cent of others to their own district's list, against 94.9 and 85.1 per cent once missed and false links are counted. The register and the survey miss the same young men, so the estimate's sex ratios at 18 to 44 fall short of the ones births and survival give; men aged 18 to 29 and 30 to 44 are raised by 1.095 and 1.048. Serving personnel at Larrick Barracks are taken from the Defence Forces' return.

How sure. The intervals come from resampling the survey's blocks and repeating every step, the clerical review's measure of the matching and the raising factors included, because those errors move every district together. Resampling the survey alone gives a national interval of plus or minus 0.4 per cent; the full one is plus or minus 1.0 per cent.

Why the figures differ from the register. Every district's register count is higher than its estimate: the lists still hold people who have left Kilvarra or died, duplicate registrations and people now living in another district, partly offset by residents listed elsewhere (students registered at home, recent movers) and residents on no list. The workbook's second sheet gives each part by district.

Why the figures differ from the rolled-forward estimate. The population accounts put Kilvarra at 325,247 on 30 June 2026, 5,050 above this estimate. About 7,140 emigrants since mid-2021 are still on the register and were never recorded in the accounts; 603 arrivals on the border record are missing from them; the remaining 1,490 is well within the estimate's own sampling error. The accounts and the register share the same unrecorded emigrants, so the closeness of a register-based figure to the accounts is no check on it.
